

PARSONS THE NEW SCHOOL

As part of its commitment to supporting students with their progression to leading higher education institutions, ISCA was delighted to welcome Mike Fakih, Director of Admissions at Parsons. Following his lively presentation, Mr Fakih said, 'The creativity of ISCA students, their preparedness and curiosity, and ability to clearly express themselves were impressive.'

SAATCHI GALLERY PRIZE DRAW

Two lucky second year fashion students won the rare opportunity to take part in a special Fashion Illustration workshop at the Saatchi Gallery in London this month. Run by Ezinma Mbonu, a graduate of Central Saint Martins and the Royal College of Art, students learnt about design theory and how to analyse and mix colours to produce an industry-style palette.

3D PRINTING

International design and 3D printing manufacturer iMakr, spent the day at ISCA teaching and delivering practical workshops to all first year students. Students learnt the practical application of 3D printing for art and design and how this may further impact on creative industries in the future. Techniques learnt will be embedded across different subject specialisms.

EMILY CARR UNIVERSITY OF ART & DESIGN

Emily Carr University in Vancouver is world renowned for its arts education. Recently, Avalon Mott visited ISCA to give an overview of the student experience there. Her presentation engendered plenty of questions. As Avalon herself said, 'I really enjoyed meeting all the engaged students, and the faculty that are helping to shape them into the our future artists.'
