

THE NEW TERM

In their first week at ISCA, students visited the Tate Modern in the heart of London to enjoy international contemporary art. Art and design tasks were set which will provide valuable research for future projects. The day culminated in a visit to Central Saint Martins to view the work of graduating ISCA students who have spent the summer working on the FAD Plus course.

FASHION INSIDER

As part of our commitment to preparing students for their future careers we were delighted when designer Chetna Bhatt (Fashion Designer at Zandra Rhodes) took time away from her hectic schedule at London Fashion Week to conduct a masterclass in surface design. Ms Bhatt advised students that, "As a designer it's important to have a source of inspiration. You have to put your own stamp on things. Learning never stops and I'm still learning every day."

EXPERT ADVICE

Students were able to tap into a wealth of industry experience when Professor Jimmy Choo and a team of young designers recently visited ISCA. Professor Choo said that skills and design knowledge are integral to success within the industry. He also spoke of the importance of sharing ideas and embracing a collaborative approach when working.

THE ART OF CONVERSATION

Last week, ISCA's Honorary Patron Edward Guinness met with Professor Jimmy Choo and Executive Director Colin Kerrigan. Over afternoon tea, the men discussed topics ranging from the importance of art education, developments in 3D printing, the fundamental skill of drawing and the strong link between art and science. It was also an opportunity to talk about a special prize for drawing that ISCA will be launching later this year.
