

CREATIVE DIALOGUES

Well done to ISCA students studying on the Preliminary Programme who have been working hard over the holidays to create digital sketchbooks. Individual tutorials have provided a wonderful opportunity for thinking about how to present in a digital format, without compromising on visual presentation. Being able to share screens has been invaluable for demonstrations and feedback sessions.

It has been great to see students' development work continuing in their home countries; after brainstorming ideas for 'creative ways to work with available materials', many have managed to gather alternative materials and media to enrich their work.

Tutors have been very impressed with students' ability to adapt to online school life and master the necessary IT skills. All of which shows that creativity can thrive in the face of adversity!
