

COMMUNITY MATTERS

Welcome to the new academic year at ISCA and the first newsletter of the term! This is an exciting time for the whole school community and we look forward to meeting all new students and reconnecting with the year 2 students. It is good to be back in the studios and in many ways the demands of negotiating the coronavirus crisis have made us appreciate all the more the importance of connecting to others. By working together as a school community we have creative opportunities to develop ideas and deepen understanding.

This has certainly been a busy week with plenty of induction activities and the start of rotation for year 1 students where they will experience all the different art and design disciplines first hand. For year 2 students who have their sights on university applications, there is the first session of CLASP at University of the Arts London.

Lastly, special thanks should go to the boarding staff and studio assistants who have supported quarantining students to make it a positive experience.

We look forward to working together with you all in the coming weeks!
